Series editors:
Johan Schot – Eindhoven University of Technology, The Netherlands
Phil Scranton – Rutgers University, USA
Publisher: Palgrave Macmillan

Who, indeed, built Europe? Entrepreneurs and engineers? Politicians and scientists? Consumers and activists? Making Europe tells the story in 6 richly illustrated volumes. Covering more than 150 years, this series charts the people and ideas, the goods and technologies that spread between countries—and continents. Making Europe reveals the history of:

- Day-to-day practices, from drinking milk to commanding wind power
- Large-scale infrastructures, from the railroads to the Internet
- Knowledge networks, from CERN to the European Space Agency

DAILY LIVES

BOOK 1 (November 2013)

Consumers, Tinkerers, Rebels: The People Who Shaped Europe

Ruth Oldenziel – Eindhoven University of Technology, the Netherlands
Mikael Hård – Darmstadt University of Technology, Germany

Who wielded the power to shape innovations, from the railway car to the computer? It was consumers and users, claims this first volume of Making Europe. Discover the untold story of user movements: ordinary people who appropriated technologies—and used those technologies to forge Europe in their own image.

KNOWLEDGE

BOOK 2 (November 2013)

Building Europe on Expertise: Innovators, Organizers, Networkers

Helmuth Trischler – Deutsches Museum, Germany
Martin Kohlrausch – KU Leuven, Belgium

Focusing on experts in technology and science, Building Europe on Expertise delivers a new reading of European history. We see experts shaping societies, setting political agendas, and creating cross-border collaborations. And we discover that experts' unique knowledge was key to uniting—as well as fragmenting—the continent.

INFRASTRUCTURES

BOOK 3 (Spring/Summer 2014)

Europe's Infrastructure Transition: Economy, War, Nature

Per Høgselius – KTH, Sweden
Arne Kaijser – KTH, Sweden
Erik van der Vleuten – Eindhoven University of Technology, the Netherlands

Europe's Infrastructure Transition captures the conflicted story of European integration. We learn of the priorities set, the choices made in constructing infrastructure connections—within and beyond the continent. And we see how Europe's infrastructure both united and divided people and places via economic systems, crises, and wars.

GOVERNANCE

BOOK 4 (Spring/Summer 2014)

Writing the Rules for Europe: Experts, Cartels, International Organizations

Wolfram Kaiser – University of Portsmouth, UK
Johan Schot – Eindhoven University of Technology, the Netherlands

How have Europeans navigated cross-border technology issues over the last 150 years? Discover the people and institutions who wrote—and re-wrote—technology's rules of engagement. And understand the processes of how, long before the EU took shape, the work of integrating Europe was well underway.

MEDIA

BOOK 5 (Fall/Winter 2014)

Communicating Europe: Technologies, Information, Events

Andreas Fickers – University of Luxembourg, Luxembourg
Pascal Griset – Paris-Sorbonne University, France

Information and communication: These technologies were at the heart of modernity. This book examines the tensions created on a European level by these technologies. Analyzed here are the technologies of economic, political and cultural importance—as well as their meanings over the Long Twentieth Century.

GLOBALIZATION

BOOK 6 (Fall/Winter 2014)

Europeans Globalizing: Mapping, Exploiting, Exchanging

Maria Paula Diogo – New University of Lisbon, Portugal
Dirk van Laak – University of Giessen, Germany

Technology was key to European colonialism. Via technology, Europeans mapped non-European territories—and controlled the flow of people and resources, goods and information. Read stories of technologies introduced and creatively adopted. Discover how globalization as we know it differs from what Europeans once intended.
